ALTERATIONS IN PLACE NAMES

The strong feeling of Nationalism engendered during the Great War and the creation of new States by the Versailles and other Treaties have led to the re-naming of many places, particularly in Central Europe, Russia, and the Near East.

This is bound to cause a certain amount of confusion until the new forms come into popular use, and upon the maps which follow, in many cases both styles are given. The greatest changes of all have probably taken place in areas which once formed part of Austria-Hungary.

Thus, Czechoslovakia (itself a post-War creation) has substituted Praha for Prague, Brno for Brünn, Yugoslavia (sometimes spelt Jugoslavia) has changed Agram to Zagreb, Spalato to Split, and so on.

The same thing has happened in Rumania and to a smaller extent in Hungary, while the new Turkey has re-named Constantinople as Istanbul, Smyrna as Izmir, and Adrianople as Edirne. Russia has aimed at obliterating all traces upon the map of the Czarist regime (Leningrad for Petrograd and Sverdlovsk for Yekaterinburg are examples), and the new Baltic States also have introduced important changes, while Ireland has recently adopted the same course nearer home.
